Hieu Huynh currently serves as the director of tutoring services at the University of North Georgia (UNG), where he has worked since August 2008. In addition to his administrative role, Huynh also serves as an adjunct math instructor and tutors students in mathematics, chemistry, and physics in the tutoring centers. Having been a member of UNG for more than 10 years, Huynh has been involved in a number of important systemwide changes, including the Complete College Georgia initiative and the implementation of the co-requisite concept in Fall 2015. Huynh has been teaching support sections of the co-requisite mathematics courses since the implementation of the concept.
