Training Overview

Description:
TTC Title Appeals Training is intended to review the core concepts and methodology underlying the implementation of the Title and Total Compensation Project so appeal panel members can knowledgeably assess title appeal requests.

Topics include:

- Job Titles & Best Fit
- The Role of the Panel Member & The Standard of Review
- Getting Started & Additional Considerations

Target Audience:
Training is designed for employees who will be involved in:

- The review of title appeal requests at their institution

Learning Objectives:
At the end of the session today, you will be able to understand:

- The function of a standard job description
- The job mapping process and methodology used to match employees to standard job descriptions in the job library including,
  - Title sets/levels,
  - Best fit concept,
  - Primary job concept,
  - Compliance with supervision requirements, and
  - FLSA legal obligation
- Your role as a panel member
- The standard of review and supporting documentation
- The process and considerations of reviewing a title appeal
Materials/Supplies:
- Participant Guide
- PowerPoint Slides

Prior to Training

- This training is designed to help title appeal panel members navigate the review process and resource materials. Additionally, it may provide some guidance to troubleshoot issues that arise in the review and discussion if title appeals using a systemwide standard of review.

Welcome (Slide 1)

Thank you for joining us today. We have a full agenda for this 1.5-hour training. Although we have a lot to cover during this time, please ask questions so you understand the task at hand. The goal of the training is for you to obtain the information needed to be a confident and informed panel member.

We will cover:

- Job Titles & Standard Job Descriptions
- Best Fit Concept
- Your Role as a Panel Member & Standard of Review
- Getting Started & Additional Considerations

NOTE: UW-Madison will conduct a separate training for their governance participants that is specific to their institutional title appeals process.
Job Titles (Slides 2 – 12)

Job titles help employees understand their organizational fit and the jobs they should apply for in the future.

Job titles also help employers organize and define the expectations they have for each employee.

Job titles have multiple purposes:

Functional
- Convey roles and responsibilities clearly.
- Clarify scope of authority and accountability.
- Reflect organization structure.
- Align with job levels, compensation and talent programs.
- Facilitate clear and consistent market benchmarking of similar roles and responsibilities.
- Facilitate recruitment and career progression.

Legal
- Support compliance with laws and regulations including pay equity, EEO regulations, FLSA and OFCCP requirements.

Personal
- Reflect experience/proficiency level achieved.
- Convey relative positioning within the institution.
Inconsistent job titles can have far reaching implications:

- Lead to misperceptions about job responsibilities and may fuel perceptions of inequity.
- Create confusion regarding roles and responsibilities.
- Hamper recruitment of qualified candidates.
- Complicate salary benchmarking.

So now, let’s talk about the job description transformation we just went through with the Title and Total Compensation Project (TTC).

First, why are we doing this?

- To ensure we are competitive with other employers who are competing for the same talent as UW, we need to understand how our compensation compares. One of the goals of the TTC project was to develop market informed pay ranges. Establishing the Standard Job Descriptions (SJDs) is a fundamental basis for this process.

How are we doing this?

- We created standard job descriptions that capture the core, common work done across our institutions.

Why did we take this approach?

- Mercer, our partner for the TTC, identified a need to develop standard job descriptions which is a leading practice. Many higher education institutions took this approach and were successful. Some examples are the University of Michigan and the University of Virginia.
A standard job description is a statement of facts about:

- Scope of the work
- Accountabilities of the work that are essential to a job’s existence

Standard Job Descriptions (SJDs)

- Communicate an overall picture of the nature of work performed
- Communicate the position’s role in the organization
- Determine the kind of work, level of difficulty, accountabilities and working conditions required of the job
- Focus on the requirements of the job and not a specific person who might fill the position.

All SJDS contain the following features:

- A job title
- A summary
- Responsibilities
- And Education, Experience, Certifications and Licenses

When you read through the SJDS, you will notice that while they contain many of the same components of position descriptions, but the approach to creating those components is very different.

The summary for example is short, concise and represented by a few sentences.

The responsibilities focus on the high level, core tasks and are generally represented by 4-8 responsibilities per title.
You may be thinking,

- How is that short of a job description possibly capture everything that employees do, inform employees what they are supposed to do, or help employees and managers to know if the right work is being done?
- The answer is that the SJDs are not supposed to serve all of these purposes. They should represent the common and core work required for the job.

Before & After Example of the Cheesemaker

BEFORE
Summary: The candidate will be required to have the knowledge, skills and motivation to operate all cheese/dairy processing equipment at the UW Dairy Plant for the Center for Dairy Research. He/She will be assisting faculty and staff with lab demonstrations and research projects and will generally be regarded as an expert operator for all cheese manufacturing systems. This position requires the applicant to hold a Wisconsin Cheesemakers License.

Responsibilities:
A. Advanced Cheesemaking
   1. Will direct the manufacturing of natural/processed/cold pack cheeses in the dairy plant setting. Must be able to carry out instructions in manufacturing as directed by the immediate staff person responsible for the project. Must have the knowledge and ability to make necessary corrections during the cheese making process.
   2. Develop and recommend new cheese products for industry information/research and consumer end use.
   3. Must prepare bulk cheese cultures.
   4. Packages cheese by approved methods for aging for research purposes.
B. Perform lead work per project.
   1. Function as lead worker over lower level dairy plant workers.
   3. Direct and train student workers, graduate students and LTE's - as pertains to equipment operation, sanitations, and operating procedures in the dairy plant.
   4. Supervises dairy plant workers in the preparation of ingredients necessary to conduct research.
   5. Assist faculty and staff with demonstrations of processing equipment during classes.

AFTER
Summary: Manufactures and provides oversight and training for the cheesemaking process to ensure the safe production of high-quality cheese for research and retail.

Responsibilities:
- Manufactures cheese following documented cheesemaking procedures and follows sanitation guidelines.
- Monitors cheesemaking quality control processes and reports any issues that may occur.
- Participates in demonstration of the cheese making processes to interested parties.
- Performs, trains and manages the operation of equipment, sanitation and operational procedures
Each Job Family has Sub-Families. Title are categorized under each Job Family and Sub-Family. Most titles exist as a standalone title. A small percentage of the titles are part of a title set—a title and level 1, 2, 3 etc.

Job Families

- Academic Services and Student Experience
- Administration
- Advancement
- Animal Care Services
- Arts
- Athletics
- Clinical Faculty
- Communications and Marketing
- Compliance, Legal, and Protection
- Dining, Events, Hospitality Services, and Sales
- Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion

- Facilities and Capital Planning
- Faculty
- Finances
- Health and Wellness Services
- Human Resources
- Information Technology
- Libraries, Archives, and Museums
- Outreach and Community Engagement
- Public Broadcasting
- Research
- Sponsored Programs, Grants, and Contracts
- Teaching and Learning

Levels are distinct and are intended to represent different sets of responsibilities.

Levels are not used to distinguish differences in personal characteristics of an employee, such as experience, competencies, or education.

In addition, some SJDs have differences of 1-2 words between the levels, and the employee must be consistently performing the work of a specific level to use that title. For example, IT Project Manager II vs IT Project Manager III, has a difference of language that specified multi-unit projects vs enterprise projects.

How would you describe the difference between the two jobs?

Highlight through discussion:

- Academic Advisor 2 performs two extra duties
- If employee does all AA1 plus another responsibility of AA2, likely still AA1. But if employee does all AA1 plus both of the extra duties, then likely AA2.
- Now, if employee performs additional duties on top of what’s described in AA2, does not mean that they should be an AA3 (which doesn’t exist)

How would you describe the difference between the two jobs?

Highlight through discussion:

- Some responsibilities overlap, but ACT2 performs at a more complex level (e.g., not just inspect equipment, but maintain and possibly getting equipment repaired)
- ACT2 performs additional duties like collect samples and administering medication that requires more skills
- ACT2 takes lead on operational activities

These are some EXAMPLES of levels, and do not capture all the ways that levels differ. You will need to look carefully at job summary and responsibilities like we did just now when you are discussing appropriate level placement.

Best Fit (Slides 13 – 19)

In order to create the Standard Job Descriptions, we first had to ask, ‘What is the work that employees are currently doing.

Then we needed to know, of all the work that employees are doing, what is the common and core work that is done in in similar jobs?
Once we knew that, we were able to ask, “Of all the titles that are currently in the job library, which one best describes an employee’s primary role in the organization?

We are looking for a best fit for the job title and standard job description for the work an employee does on a regular and consistent basis.

- An employee may and probably does more than what is in a standard job description, but they cannot do less.
- Although an employee may perform the responsibilities of other standard job descriptions, a best fit job title and job description must represent the core function of their job.
- A way to find a best fit is to ask, if that position was open right now, what job title would I use recruit for that job?

Additional Notes:

- The expectation is that an employee performs all the responsibilities in the SJD, particularly when distinguishing between different levels.

The federal Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) establishes duties for employers for paying their workers. The FLSA applies to part-time, full-time, probationary, and temporary employees and establishes child labor rules. It does not apply to independent contractors, who are not considered employees.

The FLSA classifies the workforce into two categories. The two classifications are exempt and non-exempt.

It is also important to note that the FLSA may not be the only regulation that applies in the workplace. Many state and local governments have enacted their own labor standards to support or enhance the FLSA.

It is the role of Human Resources to ensure compliance with these federal, state, and local regulations. Please consult your human resources representative on your title appeal panel about FLSA compliance when considering best fit SJD.
It is also important to note that the FLSA may not be the only regulation that applies in the workplace. Many state and local governments have enacted their own labor standards to support or enhance the FLSA.

Reference the TTC Job Mapping Resource - Defining Levels of Supervision resource document for additional information about supervision language

Any combination of direct reports, indirect subordinates, and if your institution has specified—students and grad assistants—may be used to meet the supervision requirement, AND requires that work is consistently reported at 80 hours a week, not just occasionally.

- In most instances, if the SJD has the word ‘Supervisor’ in the title, it indicates that incumbents perform duties outlined in the ‘People Manager’ definition.
– In most instances, if the SJD has the word ‘Manager’ in the title, it indicates incumbents perform duties outlined in the ‘People Manager’ definition and/or the ‘Functional Manager’.

– In most instances, if the SJD has the word ‘Director’ in the title, it indicates that incumbents perform duties outlined in the ‘People Manager’ definition

May And/Or Language

Responsibilities in SJDs that include the word ‘may’ means that the responsibility can be met but does not have to be met by an employee to select this SJD as a best fit.

Language stating ‘and/or’ regarding people/function management must be met by an employee selecting this SJD. If an employee does not perform one or the other, a new SJD must be chosen.

Responsibilities containing references to budget, people management, and strategy must be met by an employee selecting this SJD. If an employee does not perform these responsibilities, a new SJD must be chosen.

Consider,

- institutional structure/organization, and
- leadership titles within the department, unit, etc

Be alert to title inflation and potential impacts.
Human Resources can help provide org charts or additional documents to help in considerations of organizational structure.

Contacts may include other colleges, Accounting Services, Employee Compensation and Benefit Services (EC&BS), Employee Trust Funds (ETF), Office of Human Resources (OHR), other state agencies and private business representatives.
4. Coordinate with division HR leadership team to review, discuss, and resolve payroll issues and policies and procedures and ensure that they are communicated effectively within HR and divisional departments.

What SJD would you map this employee to and why?
How did you find this SJD?

What If...

1. An employee’s current job description is not accurate?

   If a job description is inaccurate, it should be updated by following current business processes. Reference other documentation to validate employee responsibilities on 11/7/21. If there are future-expected changes to their job responsibilities, those changes follow the standard business practice to updating a title.

2. An employee’s job is split between multiple roles?

   SJD may not describe an employee’s job perfectly. But is it close enough? We’re looking for best fit.

   Use the “Job posting” test – if this employee left today, how would you post for this position? E.g. data scientist who has web development duties. Would you be hiring for a data scientist or a web developer?

   Ask yourself if there is an organization need—what organizational need is this job meeting? What is the essence of this job? Don’t be too concerned with the day-to-day tasks, but focus on the core functions it serves in the organization.

3. No title/standard job description exists for a current job?

   Consult with UWS Human Resources TTC@uwsa.edu.
The Ask (Slides 26 – 28)

The Role of a Panel Member

Panel members...

- Are not meant to represent the employee, but rather to find the best fit SJD
- Must aim to be fair and unbiased
- Must take into account organizational structure and potential inequities as a result of a recommendation

Considerations for panel member recusal/removal to discuss with HR
- When the potential panel member...
  - Has a personal interest in the outcome
  - Has an appeal pending
  - A panel decision would directly impact the panel member e.g. a job in the same or similar role
  - There is a personal or professional connection to the appellant e.g. subordinate employee/supervisor relationship, or same work unit

The Standard of Review

The employee filing the appeal has the responsibility for submitting the necessary documentation for review.
- HR may supplement the submitted documents as appropriate during the panel review.
- Documentation must present clear and convincing evidence that a different title of record is a better fit for the position.

NOTE: Job data for employees at other campuses cannot be used as relevant documentation due to variations in organizational structure at different universities, divisions, and work units.

NOTE: Personal correspondence cannot be used as supporting documentation; the panel should be considering official documentation of job responsibilities.
Considerations for panel member recusal/removal to discuss with HR

When the potential panel member...

– Has a personal interest in the outcome
– Has an appeal pending

Or when...

– A panel decision would directly impact the panel member, e.g. a job in the same or similar role

Or...

– There is a personal or professional connection to the appellant, e.g. subordinate employee/supervisor relationship, or same work unit

The Ask

We ask that you review title appeals for:

✓ Relevant and compelling documentation
✓ Work specific language
✓ Appropriate Education, Experience, Certifications & Licenses
✓ Adequate differentiation in work complexity as distinguished by summary and responsibilities
✓ Reasonable representation of position in the organization

The Standard of Review

The employee filing the title appeal may work with their institution Human Resources to gather the necessary documentation.

Documentation must present clear and convincing evidence that a different title of record is a better fit for the position.
Examples of Documentation

- position description (If no formal PD, employee works with supervisor to validate what the employee does)
- standard job description (current assigned and proposed)
- original job posting
- hiring letter/offer letter
- performance reviews
- organizational chart
- other relevant documentation

Job data for employees at other campuses cannot be used as relevant documentation due to variations in organizational structure at different universities, divisions, and work units.

Getting Started (Slides 29 – 34)

Now we will talk about the format and process for completing your review.

Preparation for the review process is important.

It is highly recommended that before you start your review, you...

- Read through all the title appeal documentation,
- Download and review the potentially applicable standard job descriptions, and,
- Write down your thoughts before convening with the group.

Consult your HR team for specifics on your title appeals panel process and documentation.
Section Questions:

• What is the date for the panel review, 1 session or multiple sessions?

Steps to Complete:

1. Publish appeal notice posted in advance
2. Ensure someone volunteers to take notes
3. Choose someone to lead the panel discussion and pace the review
4. Start the meeting and close the session

Reference the Closed Meeting Script resource document.

Section Questions:

• How well does this job title match what you would expect this job to be called in a higher education setting based on the applicant’s current title and description of responsibilities?

• How well does it fit when compared to the title proposed by the appellant? Does HR have additional suggestions?

Steps to Complete:

1. Read the employee’s justification, position description (PD), supporting documents, the proposed SJD job summary and responsibilities
2. Answer the question: How well does this job title match what you would expect this job to be called in a higher education setting?

Do not compare the jobs from within one institution to another, as each institution, and many times schools/colleges/divisions, have unique organizational structures.

Section Questions:

- How well does the summary & responsibilities give an accurate assessment of scope and responsibility?
- How suitable are the responsibility statements for the current title?
- Are there any important responsibilities that seem to be missing?
- If yes, what responsibilities are missing from this job description?

Steps to Complete:

1. Read the employee’s justification, position description (PD), supporting documents, the proposed SJD job summary and responsibilities.

2. Answer the question: Are there any important responsibilities that seem to be missing?

3. If the title does not feel accurate, answer question: If relevant, what job title do you suggest might be a better fit?

More tasks do not equate to different or “higher” level job description

Employee must do all the responsibilities in the job description. They can do more than what is in the job responsibilities, but not less.
Section Question:

- Please review the combinations of education and experience that represent the minimum, typical and preferred qualifications for the position.

Steps to Complete:

1. Read the employee’s justification, position description (PD), supporting documents, the proposed SJD job summary and responsibilities

2. Answer the question: does the employee’s education and experience meet the minimum preferences or requirements in the standard job description?

The minimum preferred education represents the systemwide shared minimum elements of each job description. When posting for an open position, universities can add additional requirements or preferences to their specific recruitment.

Minimum: The most basic combination of education and experience necessary to perform the work.

Preferred: The most desired combination of education and experience ideally held to perform the work.

Required: The, in most cases, state mandated minimum combination of education and experience to perform the work.

FINAL STEP

Provide a recommendation to the Final Arbitur/Decision-Maker in the Title Appeals Process. Include Justification and specific examples.
Additional Considerations (Slides 35 – 38)

What is scaling?

Scaling further refines the market pricing for a job based on a set of peers with similar size (staff full time equivalency FTE) and expenditures. Scaling is not title progression.

<table>

<td>Assistant Dean (B)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ASSISTANT DEAN/S</td>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

How is scaling applied?

Each UW System institution uses a job code and modified titles for certain jobs that are scaled – either A, B, or C. If there is a scaled job available, the institution should choose that job for their employees.

Institutions that are A, can use B or C titles for their smaller colleges/divisions/departments based on a size (staff full time equivalency FTE) and expenditures comparison.

Institutions that are B, can use C titles for their smaller colleges/divisions/departments based on a size (staff full time equivalency FTE) and expenditures comparison.
Some institutions are using business titles. Business titles cannot be appealed. There is a separate business process through HR for establishing business titles. We want to give you the guidelines for business titles to clarify how these were determined.

There must be a demonstrated need for a business title based on the following guidelines

A business title should:

- Clarify a position’s role in the organization
- Describe the work performed in a role
- Align with industry best practice

A business title must:

- Be approved by institution Human Resources in consultation with the Chancellor, department/division lead, and employee supervisor

Business Titles Cannot...

- Duplicate a title of record or official title
- Misrepresent the university or the authority of a position in any way
- Use words that are recognized as typically being associated with executive titles – president, chancellor, director – or any modified executive titles – vice president, etc. – without institution Human Resources, Chancellor, departmental, and/or division approvals
Next Steps (Slide 39)

Thank you for participating in this training.

You now have the knowledge and resources to review your institution’s title appeals and provide recommendations to your institution’s decision-maker.

If you have follow-up questions, please contact your institution human resources or the project inbox TTC@uwsa.edu.
